

idfx

INSPIRATION FOR INTERIOR DESIGN PROFESSIONALS

www.idfxmagazine.com

GRAND HOTELS

Chic case goods make storage sexy in the world's top destinations

FABRIC FOCUS

Products, predictions and profiles

Out of this World

Futuristic forms herald tomorrow's trends at Paris and Cologne

MARCH 2010 / £4.99

Rising Stars

The latest faces to watch have come to interior design from backgrounds as diverse as underwriting and TV production. What they share is the talent and flair to create beautiful schemes that are really getting noticed.

by AMELIA THORPE

Stephen Dick

Before embarking on his interior design career, Dick, 37, spent 10 years as an underwriter in the fine arts market at Lloyd's of London. He graduated from the Inchbald School of Design in 2005 with distinctions in the diploma and postgraduate diploma in architectural interior design. While a student he also picked up the Inchbald Award and Principal's Prize. He worked for Jestico + Whiles for two years before setting up Residence Interior Design. 'I wanted to focus on the projects I love the best: the creation of highly individual, contemporary spaces without compromising on luxury or comfort,' he says. He now specialises in residential work.

www.residenceinteriordesign.com

